Considering a Withdrawal?

Considerations that Might Require Some Questioning-
1) Will it affect your Financial Aid? You might want to contact your financial aid counselor
   a. https://financialaid.kennesaw.edu/contact-counselor.php

2) Have you previously used any “W’s”? Please check the Kennesaw State Catalog on the current policy in regard to the amount of withdrawals a student is able to have

Personal Considerations-
1) Have you been working hard in the class? Is there enough time to turn your grade around by the end of the semester?

2) Do you have any tests/major assignments coming up before the withdrawal date? If you have any upcoming tests/papers in the classes before the withdrawal, give them your best effort to see how you do.

3) Is this class negatively affecting your other courses? Is there no way to be successful in this class and your other classes during this semester?

4) Have you spoken with your professor? We suggest talking with your professor on your status in the course and whether or not withdrawing is something you should consider to do.

You’ve Decided to Withdraw-
Please go to Owl Express and the Registration tab. Make sure you read the Withdrawal instructions and do not erroneously withdraw from the wrong course

Notes-
Though a withdrawal might not have an immediate effect on your GPA at Kennesaw State University, the attempt with a “W” will exist on your transcript, even if you repeat it. So, withdrawing should be a last resort. Make sure to build course schedules that you are confident you can handle, but also recognize the course expectations that the major is going to require of you in all semesters. Students should not create patterns of withdrawals on their transcripts.
